

Abstract

The financial markets all over the world have participants who try to follow others suppressing their own belief and information. The phenomena known as herding is prevalent among different market participants.

This study attempts to examine the herding in Indian stock market especially in reference to the global financial crisis. The study found the absence of herding in the Indian stock market(NSE) during the period of 2004- '12.